
ESDW 2025

We would like to invite you to the European Sustainable Development Week (ESDW; ETUR in Czechia), which is a pan-European festival promoting sustainability in all its aspects, as formulated by the UN in the 17 Sustainable Development Goals. Topics range from social equality, health promotion, a fair economy to climate action and the development of sustainable cities. There are countless opportunities to get involved. The annual ESDW falls on the week of 20–26 September, but due to the start of the academic year, we will take advantage of the extended time frame.

ESDW 2025 will take place at Charles University, taking into account the thematic overlap with the European Mobility Week, from September 16 to October 8, 2025. As in previous years, the faculties and other parts of the university will also join the program. This year, the program will also include a diverse range of activities, such as conferences, exhibitions, seminars, workshops, lectures, film screenings, community events, open days and more. This year, the event will be conducted in the spirit of: One University, a Thousand Paths to Sustainability.

Information about the programme will be available soon.
